Confession of Deeming, Who Killed his Wife

HE ALSO SLEW HIS CHILDREN

He is Reported to Have Declared That Ma Committed the Two Last White-

shapel Murden

Lovoov, March 16. - A dispatch from Australia says that the Melbourne Argus has published an alleged confession by the murderer, Frederick Deeming. In his confession Deeming is represented as saying that he was guilty of killing his wife and children at Bainhill, as well as of the murder of his other wife, Miss Mather, at Windsor near Melbourne. The murderer is represented as having also confessed that he was guilty of killing the two last Whitechapel victims. This confession is alleged to have been made to the fallor at Perth, Australia.

The Story Discredited. The London police authorities stated that they believed the story to be a fiction on the part of the Argus or Deeming, so far as the Whitechapel victims are concerned. They never believed that Deeming was Jack the Ripper. If it is a fiction on the part of Deeming. it is suggested that a probable motive on his part would be to establish evidence of homicidal mania by showing that he had killed people without a motive, whereas, in the case of the Rainhill victims at least, the molive was apparent. The London police are confident that Deeming could not have been in London at the time of the last two Whitechapel murders, and certainly not at the time of the murder of "Carrotty Nell," in February of last year. The police point out that there was an syldent object in both the Rainsill and Melbourne tragedies and that they were entirely in-consistent with the traits revealed in the crimes of Jack the Ripper. Besides if Deeming was Jack the Ripper he he would not have been in Australia and South Africa at the times when, according to Australian dispatches, he Finds Many Bellevers. On the other hand many are inclined to believe the story of the Argus and that Deeming is actually Jack the Ripper. They point to the fact that the period which has elapsed since Jack the Ripper's last murder agrees with the time that Deeming was engaged in his Rainhill scheme and the accompanying tragedies, that Deeming was a seaman and that the crimes have always peen attributed to a senfaring man, and that there is yet no certainly that Deeming was away from London when the Whitechapel murlers occurred. Indeed, his absence from England for long periods agrees, t is claimed, with the theory, long enertained, that the Whitechapel murlerer was absent on protracted voywes at intervals.
